Contemporary social interactions between people, institutions, citizens, state or states are constructed on structurally correlated system of trust/distrust/mistrust. Trustful relationships are the means which hold society itself together. Trust allows functioning of simple and complex social systems, legitimacy of various social and political institutions, permits human communication, underpins financial instruments. Trust is needed for cross sectoral collaboration, moving and working across borders, co-creation processes.

In the autumn of 2019 first Trust point<sup>1</sup> has emerged in Vilnius. It is an initiative that aims to foster the dialogue about trust in our society, to critically explore, how do we perceive trust or mistrust, to understand how cultural activities can act as tools for social trust building. Trust Point is a temporary, transformative, moving space, where design and artistic tools are used to engage with the topic of trust and create new experiences.

Pilot activities - public seminar and discussion, workshop days - were organized by Performative Design Association (LT) in collaboration with Tillitsverket (SE) and Emmaus Aaland (FI). During the first Trust Point series of events we employed methods creating certain space by using participatory approach and interactive activities. This certain space allowed us to have an honest dialogue about the importance of trust in our daily lives. Going deeper into the subject we discovered how trust could serve as a base facing or addressing complex problems within and as an organisation.
